About Weibold

Weibold is a consulting company focused exclusively on scrap tire recycling and pyrolysis. We help companies successfully build and upgrade tire recycling and pyrolysis businesses.

The company was founded in 1999 by Robert Weibold. Over the years, Weibold gathered an international team of experts and established a large professional network involving researchers, decision makers and authorities. Today, we maintain liaison with numerous industry players, including world’s leading innovators. This enables us to receive first-hand information about markets, new products and innovative technologies in the field of tire recycling.

The content published on our website and in our newsletter relates to all aspects of tire recycling industry and provides unique takes on the newest developments and trends, such as: market updates, product and technology innovations, trade shows and conferences, environmental regulations, etc.

Advertise with us and enhance your brand awareness across the tire recycling industry! Consider what we offer on the next pages.

Weibold's Newsletter Banner Advertising & Press Releases

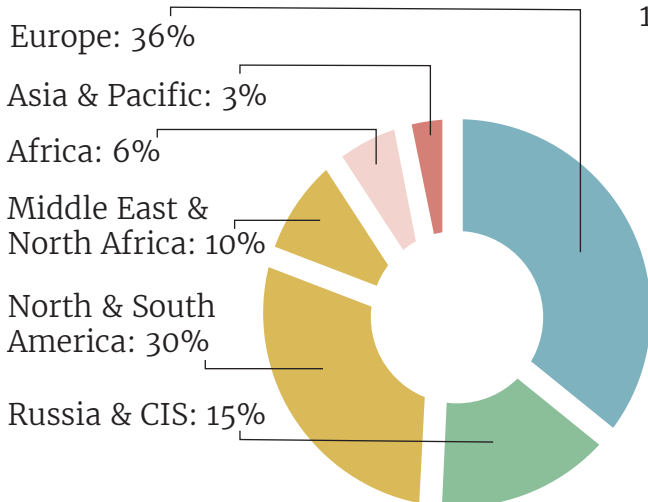

Our newsletter is the only frequent media containing quality information solely focused on tire recycling. More specialized than any other, it thus reaches a more accurate target group, continuously expanding over time.

Combined with a multi-medium strategy for optimal effectiveness, our content is being spread on our website, our and industry-related social media channels and in our newsletter.

Advertising in Tire Recycling Insights can enhance your brand awareness across the tire recycling industry. The newsletter reaches: tire recyclers, tire manufacturers, tire collectors, tire pyrolysis operators, rubber industry representatives, waste management contractors, researchers, environmental authorities, regulators, etc.
